“Nanny Tax” Service Provider Announces Charitable Giving Initiative

(Sterling VA) HomeWork Solutions Inc., a national "Nanny Tax" service provider, announces a new charitable giving initiative to help provide for the nation's neediest during these challenging economic times.

The company committed to contribute 1% of all revenues for year ending December 31, 2009 to community food banks across the nation.

Kathleen Webb, President of the Sterling VA-based company, explained the program by saying “while the company has always supported charitable organizations in our headquarters region (Washington DC), this program is designed to expand our support to food banks and other types of charitable organizations in Boston, NYC, San Francisco and Austin, Texas and to other communities where our clients reside.”

The company expects to increase charitable donations fivefold over prior years.

The company is the nation's leading provider of payroll and payroll tax service for nannies, housekeepers and other domestic employees. Ms Webb went on to state: “We understand that many people chose not to pay into the Social Security/ Medicare/ Unemployment system for their nannies and other domestic workers. We feel that in these tough economic times our company should be rewarding those that do the right thing and to give back something on their behalf to their communities.” Food banks were an obvious and immediate means to help in our clients' communities.

Ms Webb concluded; “Hopefully more corporations far more able than us will pick up on this initiative and find ways to either increase their charitable giving or direct it to provide an additional safety net for the individuals who have been hurt by the economic downturn.”
